CITY COUNCIL CONSIDERS STORM SEWER PLAN

'ROUND 'N' 'ROUND

Bustling activity at the inner harbor indicates that finally the long battle of Richmond progressive citizens is bearing fruit.

If you want to see a good example of speedy building watch the erection of the Felice and Ferrelli cannery. But don't get too close or you are liable to be run over.

Indications are that the canning machinery will be installed and canning operations starter before the contractors are through with their construction.

And we predict that after the cannery here has been given a fair trial there will be many more clamoring to get sites here and take advantage of the excellent conditions.

Compare the weather we have been having for the past week and then check up on the death rate in the blizzard which as just swept the middle west. There can be no question then as to why industrial leaders want to move their plants out o the west.

One of the best advertisements that Richmond can have and which will reach all corners of the nation is a correct census.

You can do your part by being ready for the census enumerator when he calls. There are quite a few questions to be answered and the census takers will have a lot of territory to cover. Be ready with your answers.

Practically every time a census has been taken in our experience entire sections of cities have been entirely omitted. Every attempt will be made to prevent such a condition in Richmond this year. However, if you find that no census enumerator is working in your district, call those in charge and see that your name gets on the list.

Taking of the census is a big job and the government as you know is bound up with red tape and handle the census in a strictly business-like manner. You can do your bit by being ready.

This is the kind of weather that makes you glad that you're alive—if you can find a cool spot and don't have to work too hard.

Which makes it just ideal for the writing of this column, which is supposed to represent neither time, thought or work.

And in case you have not been keeping up with the news, Vallejo is now closer to San Francisco than we are. An airplane service which is to run on a regular schedule has accomplished that.

Afer all, newspaper representatives of press services in Washington are there to bring to the general public news of what is going on there. If the solons throw stones into the path of these scribes in gathering the true news of what is going on they are merely continuing their policy of "the public be dammed."

NEW SYSTEM HELD NEED HERE

By FRANK B. SCHUMANN

Sewage conditions in Richmond have reached such a point that we are liable to face an epidemic at any time. Action must be taken, and at once if Richmond is to take care of its present population, let alone the possible increase from newly established industries and others which may locate here within the next few years.

This was the salient point around which discussion hinged during a special session of the city council last night in considering a report submitted to the council by E. A. Hoffman, city engineer. This report was prepared by John O. Miller, sanitary engineer with the assistance of Hoffman and his staff.

System Inadequate

It was brought out during the discussion that the present sewer system is hopelessly inadequate. That flood conditions exist in many parts of the city or as long as three days after a heavy rain. The area of this flood condition has gradually increased until it presents a hazard to life and property.

Sanitary sewers in some sections of the city will have to be replaced within the next few years at an approximate cost of $150,000 unless a general plan is adopted before that time, it was pointed out.

One sewer in especially poor condition is on Dock street which has now exceeded the normal life of sewers of that type of construction. The replacement of this sewer alone it is estimated will cost approximately $12,000.

Drainage Stopped

Many of the conditions which now exist in the backing up of sanitary sewers during the rainy season is due to the fact that filling in of drain ditches and raising of land by filling at the waterfront has closed the avenues of escape for storm waters. When rains occur the sanitary sewers are flooded and force sewage up into the streets.

As pointed out in the report by Miller there are many sections of the city where sewage waste, both solid and liquid can be seen on

MARTINEZ, Mar. 26—That the Associated Oil company of California is considering appropriation of $5,000,000 for the development of its refinery at Avon was learned today from an authentic and official source.

INDEX PLAN FOR CHARITY WORK WILL BE ADOPTED

Establishment of a Central Index system to take care of welfare work was definitely decided upon yesterday at a meeting in the Richmond Health Center of representatives of various welfare groups.

Mrs. J. S. Spires was named chairman of the group and Mrs. Whilemina Reed was elected secretary.

It is planned o start the system not later than April 1 and it will be located temporarily at the Richmond Health center.

Through the use of this system, charity work in Richmond would be coordinated and duplication of work would be prevented, it was stated.

When a charity organization receives word of a family or individual needing aid, the organization will get in touch with the index and will learn wether or not some other local group is taking care of the case. If none is, they will take charge of the case and will report it to the index.

In this way, every bit of charity and welfare work here will be carefully checked, thus assuring that the needy receives aid and that the work is not being duplicated by some other organization.

There has been a need of such a system here, delegates to the meeting declared. It was stated that in many cases worthy cases were going without aid while other cases were being aided by two, and sometimes more charity groups.

It will be Mrs. Spires' duty to call meetings of he local organizations to discuss the work or take up any business that applies to the group.

There were 22 delegates present yesterday, representing Richmond churches, clubs, lodges and service clubs.

The two boys had stopped at a neighbor's house overnight.

BLIZZARD IN CHICAGO ENDS

CHICAGO, March 26.—UP— A blizzard will go down in history as bringing the heaviest snowfall this section of the middle west has witnessed in 50 years, came to an end shortly before midnight tonight.

After 45 hours of continuous snowing, the official report showed that 19.1 inches had fallen in Chicago and vicinity, far surpassing the previous high mark of 14.8 inches made only three months ago. Drifts in many places were ten feet and more in depth.

Clear and cold weather was predicted for tomorrow, when the midwest will begin its job of digging from under.

Conveniences of the modern city, street cars, trains, and busses were made virtually useless by the record breaking snows.

Horses on Job

While 20,000 men labored almost in vain to clear even the main arteries, the horse, old standby of the snowbound village reigned supreme. He clomped over the drift locked streets, and delivered food, milk and coal which otherwise would have been stalled in motor trucks somewhere enroute.

Chicagoans, many of whom spent most of last night going home, straggled to work hours late again today. The storm continued throughout the day so that transportation conditions were worse if anything tonight than before.

Only two of the city's street car lines were operating at all and then only intermittently. On the

GUARDSMEN, POLICE HALT MISSOURI PRISON RIOT

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo., Mar. 26—(UP)—Beef stew served to 750 prisoners in Missouri state penitentiary here today noon caused a mess room mutiny which for a time threatened to throw inmates of the century old prison into open rebellion.

It was halted by the quick action of prison authorities who called upon Jefferson City police and upon the Missouri National Guard.

The militiamen and police mounted the wall, armed with machine guns and riot squad guns. The extra guards were sent into factories where the remaining convicts were employed and stood guard over them until the mutineers were cowed.

The rioting started after prisoners had been served the noon day meal. When the meal was over the men refused to leave the hall, the leaders seated in front row chairs intimating those in the rear of the room.

Fight Starts

"We want fried meat," was the cry set up by the convicts who had been fed a prison fare of beef stew. At the first sign of mutiny the guards were withdrawn from the room and the heavy barred doors locked.

The men beat their tin plates and cups on the table in time to the screaming.

Other prisoners, employed in factories near the mess hall, heard the shouting but did not

PLAN TO BE STUDIED BY GROUP

By MAYNARD YOUNGS

If the community chest drive is to become a success in Richmond, the co-operation and unification of all organizations are neressary.

This was the consensus of opinion expressed at a meeting of delegates from social service agencies, civic and fraternal bodies, and service clubs in the Hotel Carquinez last night to discuss the forming of a community chest in Richmond.

Practically all of those present declared that the chest drive could be made a success if the organizations of Richmond united in their efforts in drives for funds and did not attempt so many drives each year.

Committee Named

Perhaps the most prevelant opinions at the meeting were that the industries must be approached, and trained workers must be obtained to reach the people who are financially able to contribute to the fund.

Many Supporters

The Best Way for a Woman to Figure Out Her Income Tax Return

ONCE upon a time there was an up-to-date, intelligent, conscientious woman,
Whose head was screwed on her shoulders the right way,
Who knew much more than enough to come in when it rained,
Who had been graduated not only from high school but from college,
Who had earned her own living efficiently for a number of years,
Who had saved money almost from the start
And had invested it in various wise and productive channels,
This woman even had had enough business sense and shrewdness
To take her little flyer in the market
And to get out of it before it got into her—
We told you that she was REALLY intelligent—and we probably should add that she was lucky!
As everybody knows, prosperity is more or less of a rolling snowball,
And to her that hath shall be given,
So it happened that various relatives of this woman bestowed upon her various bequests—
She had numerous neat sums tucked away, here and there.

It was therefore not surprising that she decided, in the future, to be her own boss—
To give up her salaried position, and start a nice little business of her own
Just as plenty of women have done and are doing—
Read the interesting true stories about them, written by Helen M. Woods For this very page of The Evening World.
It was some four years ago that the woman of whom we are telling you Started her enterprise, and it's still going strong—
She did well with it, from the very start—
But, annually, she found herself confronted by one inescapable dilemma—
One Paralyzing Problem, which not all her woman's wit seemed able to solve—
The Agonizing Ordeal of making out her income tax return—
The big one, the real one, for net incomes of more than $5,000.
With all those items about fiduciaries and dividends and profits and bad debts and depreciation and such—
With all the tricks and quirks of an income which is not simply composed Of a salary, and one small enough
So that it goes along the greased skids to the butcher, baker and candlestick maker,
And there isn't any left to be put into investments, with returns that have to be accounted for
On an income tax return—
Add conscientious of poverty: figuring out what you owe Uncle Sam
Is a cinch for anybody who has passed the Regents examination in elementary arithmetic!
But here, meanwhile, is our highly efficient and successful business woman
Confronted with that six-schedule return,
With two solid pages of fine-print instructions—
If any woman thinks it's so easy and fool-proof—
Let her consider, for example, the ground and lofty book-keeping involved in Schedule A—
There are only nineteen items to be filled out in this one schedule
Which is supposed to show the income from a business—
Items which include the cost of labor (but you can't deduct compensation for your own services)
No matter how hard you work at your business)—
The cost of material and supplies and merchandise,
The "value inventory at beginning of year,"
The "value inventory at end of year,"
The interest on business indebtedness to others,
The bad debts arising from sales or services,
The depreciation, obsolescence and depletion (explain in table provided at foot of page)—
And, in that table, you have to set down seven different and minute items,
To prove that you have a right to "deduct for losses by fire, storm, &c., claimed in Schedule A"—
Finally, there is the utterly cryptic command, at the bottom of Schedule A: "Enter 'C' or 'C and M' on Lines 6 and 8 "To indicate whether inventories are valued at cost, or cost or market, whichever is lower"—
Whichever is lower when, where, what, or why?
Honestly, it seems to us that that one sentence is enough to make any grammarian turn in his grave!
Well, and that wasn't anything like all, of course, for our too, too successful business woman—
At income tax returning time, every year, she used to wish she was a stenog!
Earning all of $25 a week, and no comeback from Uncle Sam!
She had to figure out the interest on bank deposits, notes, corporation bonds—
Also the interest on "Tax-free Covenant Bonds Upon which a Tax was Paid at Source"—
Also the profit from the little place in the country which was left her, and which she sold—
And she hadn't the remotest idea of (See Schedule C)—
Its "cost or value as of March 1, 1913, Whichever Greater"—
(Another of those grammatical nightmare sentences!)
Then, she had to set down her bad debts—
And, like every woman with a business of her own, she had some which she knew were hopeless.
Although she couldn't possibly prove it.
She had to foot up her contributions—
As if any woman in her position and with her income could ever keep account
Of all the times when she is touched!
Then, in computing her tax and her earned income credit.
She had to set down a mere thirty-four items—
Many of them mean little problems in percentage!
Well, one year she tried to figure it all out herself—
And she got a nervous breakdown—and, besides, she Got It All Wrong.
Another year she called in one of the so-called income tax experts—
And he Got It All MORE Wrong—if you doubt it,
Read what has happened to the trusting souls in Hollywood
Who let their tame experts make out their income tax returns!
So, the next year, the efficient business woman knew that something simply had to be done—
And she did it!
Bright and early in the New Year, she got married.
Just as soon as she returned from her honeymoon she set her husband to work
On making out her income tax return—and, lo and behold, she had found the man for the job!
What she and every lucky woman know, sooner or later,
Is that the VERY best way for a woman to figure out her return
Is to let her husband sweat—and swear—over the job!

The World's Window

By Pierre Van Paassen

PARIS, March.

Glory!

As the Church of the Invalides in Paris has to undergo some necessary repairs, the thousand and one old battleflags that hang there were temporarily removed recently. On the morning when they were taken down and carefully moved to the crypt a considerable crowd of spectators had gathered, among them many an old Bonapartist. The military were represented by a battalion of chasseurs and a squadron of dragoons. The ceremony was one of those in which the French excel, of the kind that even a Frederick the Great could not have duplicated with a hundred years of drilling in Potsdam. First came the tattered banners of Marengo and Austerlitz, of Leipzig and Jena and the innumerable standards that Bonaparte brought home. Then there was a pause. Horses stamped, a babel of voices broke out among the spectators. Then a group of soldiers emerged from the building carrying flags that were topped with the faded gilt emblems of the Empire. In front came the flag on which Napoleon planted that last kiss at the foot of the staircase of Fontainebleau, the kiss which he wanted to pass into the heart of every grenadier. Silence came back with a start. A shock, like that of an electric current, swept through the crowd. Although not a single word of command was given, a thousand rifles leapt spontaneously to the present. A thousand bayonets and sabres flashed in the golden wintry sun. A great sigh passed through the parade square: "Les Aigles!" The same words escaped from everybody's lips, soldiers and civilians alike. The vast assembly stood petrified, as it were, with emotion. As the eagles neared the portal of the crypt above which stands the bronze statue of the Emperor, the band of the Republican Guard, hidden under an arcade, struck up the march of the "Sambre et Meuse," softly with muffled drums, the music seemingly coming from afar. And as the Eagles disappeared in the dark interior and the music died down to a mere whisper, you might say, it was as if we listened to the footfalls of that conquering host of glory, the Grande Armee.

Death of The Pigeons

The pigeons of the Rouen Cathedral have destroyed the faces of the saints in the sculpture work of the facade. They have pecked away till nothing remains of the martyr's crown of St. Stephen, and the fishing net of St. Peter, although fashioned out of supposedly indestructible granite, has gone the way of all fishing nets. The purse that Judas kept is no more. It is covered under a chaotic mass of petrified guano. Nor have the satanic gargoyles escaped. Their ears have been plugged up, their noses eaten away, their claws have lost their sharpness. Disaster has overtaken the whole of that mystical world, peopled with saints and demons, that has brooded over Rouen since the early middle ages, and that looked on when flames licked at the feet of the Maid whose vision had saved France. The same thing is happening to St. Paul's over in London. The work of the birds is so devastating that the Corporation of London is taking radical steps to attack the proud aldermanic pigeons. The catchers are doing so now, in winter, because, were the task of exterminating them put off till summer, when kind people from the U. S. A. and elsewhere are about, getting photographed for the home town with the pigeons feeding out of their hands, there might be an international protest. To be sure, there are many Americans in London now, if only the chic secretaries of the conference delegates, but these young ladies are too deeply versed in the ways of diplomacy to meddle in purely British affairs by starting anything like a pro-pigeon drive. There are five million pigeons in London, it is figured. Every day thousands are being caught and killed. But in Rouen they can't come to the point of killing them; that is, not officially. There are always some Rouenese who snare an absent-minded pigeon for the broiling spit, but the few casualties that end up in that manner make no serious inroads upon the legion that has its nests by the altars of God's house.

"MABEL has never introduced me to her prospective in the in-law. It is quite evident she does not want us to meet," remarked a mother.

When Mabel was questioned she said "Bert says if they ever meet our engagement would be all off and I think he is right. Mom is darling and I don't know what I would ever do without her, but Bert's mother would not understand. She travels in high society and is perfect in her manners and you know how it is. She is not uppish, but it is just her way. Mom is fine and all that but she would not fit in and I know how fastidious Bert's mother is. It puts me in an awful position because I love them both, but I do not want to lose Bert."

Mabel is making a great mistake. These mothers will meet on the wedding day and what then? If she were a wise girl she would take the chances and arrange a meeting of the two mothers. This requires courage, but the unexpected may happen and with the nervous tension removed all concerned may be happier.

Then, again, Mabel's fears may be realized but how would a fine girl like to link her entire life with a man who does not consider her mother good enough to associate with his mother?

Mabel is simply not picturing her future. Perhaps she will not believe that these marital barriers often hinder the quiet course of the matrimonial bark and sometimes it sinks. What then?

The Farmer's Advice

By Alfalfa Smith

AT this time of the year when every one—more or less—is worrying about his income tax it might be well for you to take an inventory of YOURSELF.

Start with what you have on one side and what you owe on the other. Then at the bottom put the most important item of all—YOUR EARNING CAPACITY.

That's enough for one day.

The Housewife's Scrap Book

Rub glycerine or vaseline over the corks on bottles containing glue, polishes, cement and other sticking substances so there will be no difficulty in removing the corks.

When you wish to use only the white of an egg, break a tiny bit of the shell at the end and let the white drain out, then cover the opening with a piece of plaster or just waxed paper and the yolk will keep several days.

When washing the heavy bedspread double it and pin the two edges together evenly to the line. Turn the hose on it and wet it thoroughly, then shake out all wrinkles and your spread will require no ironing.

A Hint on Lifting

DOES it nearly break your back to lift the clothes basket or any heavy article resting on the floor? That is only because you do not do it right. You use your arm muscles and your back or you may be using the abdominal and the pelvic muscles which are so readily strained. And it is so simple to do when you do it right.

In lifting a weight do not bend over at the waistline. Just squat a little, keeping your back straight, grasp the article with both hands then straighten up and you will be surprised how easily you lifted it. You see, you did it all with the legs and the muscles of the leg are intended for work.

When lifting a heavy object just remember to always use the leg muscles and get as close to it as possible.

Feet First

HEALTH, happiness, grace, poise, a clear, smooth skin and sparkling eyes—if you knew of one simple little habit which would help you win these rich and rare rewards, what could stop you from practicing that habit?

Nothing on earth! . . . Very well, then, mind your feet! For on the feet depend posture, good circulation, easy nerves and a smoothly functioning digestive apparatus. And most of us spend most of our lives on our feet, remember.

Excellent is the work being done by the makers of shoes designed first for health and second for style. But in spite of all their noble efforts, their intelligent and persistent propaganda and their thoroughly attractive products, the world is filled with women who toe out or in, instead of straight ahead; with ladies who mince because to really walk would be painful; with feet that are distorted; with wrinkled brows and red noses and sallow skins and dull eyes and melancholy expressions—all because of ill-treated feet.

Were some one to inaugurate a Foot Beautiful Contest (and we do not have reference to a shoe fashion show), how many applicants do you suppose there would be from our town? If any, how many Tribbys? How many women daring enough to display their feet as they really are without benefit of leather or fabric? . . . Small wonder that nobody has seen fit to inaugurate any such contest! Isn't it?

We have it on the word of a famous physician that more bodily ills are traceable to the feet than seems possible. He tells us that it has cured more cases of "nerves" and other ailments by simply prescribing low heels for walking, than seems credible.

All of which medical gossip and odd statistics, gentle reader, constitute just so many helpful hints to you. Did you know that the mere act of removing the shoes on coming indoors, lying down with the feet propped higher than the head, did you know that this is a health and beauty treatment? Try it. Try it often.

Before venturing outdoors try this: Bathe the feet in cold water containing a "pinch" of powdered alum. This builds foot resistance to hard pavements, to climatic extremes and to fatigue. Also it acts as a corrective to perspiring feet. However, for severe cases of the latter trouble, something less simple than water and alum are required and we take pleasure in printing the following formula.

Carbolic acid ..... 5 drops
Boric acid ..... 1 oz.
Powdered alum ..... ¼ oz.

Mix the ingredients together. Add a teaspoonful of the mixture to half a pint of water and bathe the feet with the solution. Dry thoroughly and finish with a medicated powder.

Good to Know

White gloves are modish now. Of course no well dressed woman would wear soiled gloves, so keeping the white gloves spotless has become a problem to many women. Sending them to the cleaners is an expensive proposition, on the other hand frequent home cleaning gives them a yellow tinge which is objectionable. Now here is a tip: put a teaspoonful of powdered borax in the gasoline in which you clean them and you will always be sure of pure white gloves.

You and Your Child

When Brothers and Sisters Quarrel

"GIVE me my doll! Mother, make her give me my doll!" "Oh, I'll get even with you! Mother, she hit me!" Scenes like these are familiar to most mothers. "Oh, why can't my children play without quarreling?" they wail. Don't take the arguments and spats so seriously, is my usual answer. Don't let it annoy you. It's all part of the children's play. They quarrel one minute and forget about it the next. And so should we. Have you ever watched young puppies mauling one another? Although they look so fierce, they are just playing. And our children, quarreling and making up again, are playing just like the puppies.

When youngsters who continually play together never argue or dispute, it usually means that one child is continually giving in to the other. Surely that is not a healthy state of affairs. Better by far when each one clamors lustily for his own rights.

So, usually, let us stop our ears and not interfere unless called upon to settle a dispute or unless we have to protect a child from injustice or actual harm. Many quarrels, however, could be prevented by a little wiser management on our part. Eight-year-old Howard, his mother tells me, is always fighting with his older sister. "Does his sister boss him?" I ask. "Yes, but I tell her to take him to school and take care of him," is the answer. Is it at all surprising that a robust eight-year-old boy resents an older sister always tagging after him and "taking care of him?"

"Whenever I tell my big boy to do something for me his little brother rushes to do it, and then there's always a fight," another mother says. "But why not give each child something to do, or let them take turns?" I suggest. "My oldest girl doesn't want to play with her little sister and she's awful mean to her," another woman complains. Most children dislike playing with younger sisters and brothers continually. They crave the society of children their own age. Each of the youngsters should have his own friends and then each will thoroughly enjoy occasional opportunities of playing with brothers and sisters.

Let us, then, examine the home situation and remove the sources of friction whenever possible; and, providing the children are neither mean nor malicious, let us ignore the quarrels that do arise just as much as we can. If, however, chilren quarrel because they dislike one another or are jealous, this is a more serious matter which must be carefully looked into.

BUSINESS IS GETTING BETTER

THE following business booms got under way this week:

PITTSBURGH—The Association of Hat Makers opened its convention to-day with the announcement that every American should own at least seven hats. The perfect gentleman can't get along without nine.

An informal hat is needed for going down the cellar to dump the ashes or to carry out the garbage. Then comes the hat for business, one for weddings, funerals and street parades, another one for going out to luncheon, a hat for lending to magicians, a sport hat for tennis, golf or croquet and yet another hat for the opera.

The well dressed man, in addition to the opera hat, should have a fedora for musical comedies and also a problem play lid. A lot of fastidious people also demand a hat to wear to bed.

The manufacturers make this announcement not from selfish motives, but so nobody will feel mortified at not having the necessary quota of hats.

CHICAGO—The Amalgamated Florists of America have picked Sept. 9 as Grandma's Day, Oct. 20 as Auntie's Day and the week of Nov. 9-15 as Sweethearts' Week. Any one with a spark of manhood in him will send a bouquet of flowers to some one on the days and weeks mentioned. If you have no aunts, grandmas or sweethearts, pick some el else's, but don't forget the flowers.

Special prices will prevail at flower shops on these occasions, orchids being marked down from $4 a petal to $3.98. Letters and telegrams will be sent to President Hoover urging him to make these holidays, but they will positively be official no matter what he thinks about it.

Every one should buy flowers, the florists' association announces, not because that would help their business, but because they smell so sweet.

NEW ORLEANS—This is Better Halitosis Week all over the country. Five out of every four persons have halitosis and 150 per cent. of them never suspect it. The right way to celebrate Better Halitosis Week is to buy a bottle of Breath-o-leen and invite your friends to gargle their throats. If you haven't got halitosis, Breath-o-leen is good for cleaning white buckskin shoes.

LOS ANGELES—The hardware convention here to-day indorsed a program of four mousetraps to every American home. Each family should have one trap for use at night and another one especially for the daytime. In addition, there should be separate mousetraps for imported and domestic cheese.

Any up-to-date American who doesn't want to be the laughing stock of his neighbors should buy his four mousetraps to-day. The hardware people don't need the business, but America should be kept free of mice.

NEW YORK—The Song Publishers' Alliance states that business, health and politics would show an immediate improvement if every one sang a popular song on arising in the morning. Prof. Googlevitch of New Zealand corroborates this claim.

The benefits will never be derived, however, by just humming the song or stumbling through the chorus. Every word in both verses, together with the chorus and catch lines, must be sung or pronounced. The only way to get results is to buy the sheet music.

The alliance says a new and different song should be sung every day and Prof. Googlevitch backs that up too. This movement may be helpful to the song publishing trade, but the main idea is to get every one singing and make America a brighter nation.

Judge Wood refused to grant a postponement to Cromwell Ormsby, indicted with Davis, who was to appear for arrraingement butwho sent ord frwom San Jose that he could not appear. The judge indicated that Ormsby must appear before night or face rearrest.

Judge Homer Spence overruled demurrers to the indictments against three paving men, A. A. Horwege, Harry Lesser and James Austin, although Peter R. Crosby, their attorney, took an exception to the ruling and intimated that an appeal might be made.

Their trial on the conspiracy charges anent the asserted paving graft will be held April 28.

Bystanders 'Casualties' In U. C. 'War'

BERKELEY, Mar. 26—(UP—An innocent bystander who became the target for an egg was the only "casualty" when University of California students engaged in a sham battle on Telegraph avenue yesterday.

The "war" was precipitated when two students in an automobile drove through the street, squirting a powerful stream of seltzer at onlookers.

Then a group of students began hurling eggs and bags of water in an effort to repel the invaders, who were ultimately driven off, but not before Schubert Inch, the "innocent bustander," received an inadvertent egg shampoo.

Police riot squads arrived at the scene after the last of the warriors had fled, and there was nothing for the minions of the law to do except notify the street-cleaning department to "resurrect" the battlefield to its previous state of cleanliness.

Barry Named Vice-President Of County Group

At a recent meeting in Walnut Creek, Fire Chief A. W. Vargas of Concord was elected president of the Contra Costa County Fire Chief's association, and Assistant Fire Chief J. J. Barry of Richmond was elected vice president.

An interesting talk on standardization of equipment and modern methods of fighting fire, was given by Capt. George Murray of the San Francisco fire department.

The group will discuss the standardization of hose connections so every department in the county can operate in any other city. It is probable that the national standard connections as used in Richmond will be adopted. The next meeting will be held in Martinez April 22.

Beside Barry, Capt. H. J. Schmidt, Capt. R. A. Wells, Capt. R. P. Myers, Peter Martin, I. S. Conrad and W. C. Kates attended from the local department.

—RAGS WANTED—

MANY SEEKING TO IDENTIFY WOMAN

EUREKA, March 26. — UP—Friends of four women who have been missing from their homes in California tried to identify the body of a beautiful Titian haired young woman which has provided authorities with an unusual mystery.

From the clothing which covered the body when it was found, Robert Mears, Crescent City, Ore., declared he believed the victim was his sweetheart, Mrs. Claire Bronson of San Francisco.

A description of the dead woman's features caused Harry Roche, local insurance man, to declare she might have been Mrs. Thelma or Cynthia Hughes of San Francisco.

Other names offered were Mrs. Gladys Preston of Redding and Irene Johnson, Eureka entertainer.

On the presumption that Mrs. Bronson might have left San Francisco in February to join Mears against the wishes of a man declared to be a resident of San Pedro, local authorities asked San Pedro officials for assistance.

The victim was shot through the head and her body was hidden behind a redwood log. The coroner said the woman had been dead from six to eight weeks. Her beauty and stylish dress caused authorities to use every resource for determining her identity.

Wheat Men To Face Charges

CHICAGO, Mar. 26—(UP)—Secretary of Agriculture Arthur M. Hyde, seeking to learn the cause of recent wild fluctuations in grain prices, singled out today three former members of the Chicago Board of Trade. They were accused of manipulating grain prices in violation of the Federal Grain Administration act.

William B. Massey, John S. Reddy and Philip J. Reddy, traders named in the charges referred to by the secretary of agriculture, were suspended from the exchange pending a referee's hearing April 7.

Massey and the Reddys were specifically charged with manipulating market prices last July 11 through an alleged fictitious sale of wheat. Thereafter, said the 000 bushels of December wheat at abnormal prices "through ruses, schemes and devices."

MUSIC, COMEDY FEATURED IN 'HIT DECK'

Action, color, music, splendor. Words describe with difficulty the entertainment values in Radio Pictures' lavish musical comedy, "Hit the Deck" whic hopened last night at the Fox-California theater.

Actual scenes of a battleship fleet, liberty boats filled with sailors, brass bands, girls and all the atmosphere of a naval waterfront, add realism to the story background. The battleship deck where in the "Smith party" is staged, is photographed in technicolor. Hundred sof players participate in these scenes.

Polly Walker, former Broadway beauty, demonstartes her right to the title. Aside from an unusual beauty of face and form, Miss Walker reveals genius in her songs and dancing. As Looloo, the coffee shop girl, she convinces.

Opposite Miss Walker in the role of Bilge is Jack Oakie, Hollywood's newest sensation in the comedy field. The part seems made for Oakie.

Others in the cast are Marguerita Padula, singer, June Clyde, Radio Pictures player, in new songs and dances, Ethel Clayton as Mrs. Payne, Del Henderson, Wallace MacDonald and the inimitable three comedians, Roger Gra, F. Woods and Harry Sweet. They are very much in evidence in the story and hilariously funny.

Nine songs—even fore than the stage production had—include such numbers as "Join the Navy" "Looloo" "Hallelujah" "Keeping Myself Just For You" "Harbor of My Heart," "Sez You, Sez Me" and "Sometimes I'm Happy."

Pearl Eaton directed the dance sequences; Victor Baravalle, the music, and Robert Kurrle was responsible for the camera work.

Salvation Army Prayer Week To Start Sunday

For eight days starting March 30, the Salvation Army throughout the western territory and the world will observe the annual week of prayer and self denial, that the missionary work of the Army in heathern lands may be carried forward.

During this period every officer and soldier of the Army rigidly denies himself of the necessities of life, using the money thus gained for the support of the less favored comrades in the dark countries.

Under the direction of Commissioner Adam Gifford, leader of the Salvation Army forces in the west, Salvationists will follow the Army relief program mentally around the world and coupled with their self denial program, pray daily for the advancement of relief work in eight different missionary fields.

Sunday, March 30, will be devoted to South America, where notwithstanding the peculiar difficulties encountered in these Latin countries, the Salvation Army is now firmly established in Argentina, Uruguay, Paraguay, Chile Peru, and Bolivia. The Army is welcome at all places among other social service enterprises sailors' homes have been opened in Montevidio, Valparaiso and Callao.

On each succeeding day special attention will be devoted to Korea, Africa, Dutch EEast Indies India, Japan, Ceylon and China.

Every Salvation Army corps and outpost in the bay districts will put on special self denial programs during the coming week.

BLIZZARD ENDS RECORD FALL OF SNOW

other lines long red cars, many of them off the tracks, were stalled in utter isolation while the wind driven snow began to bury them.

Trains Creep Along

Suburban trains which bring thousands to work in the Loop daily, managed to creep along erratically behind snow plows, hours late. All trains entering Chicago, in fact, moved on disorganized schedules while 5000 workers in the yards plied switches with brooms and rock salt.

Busses plunged and wallowed through the buried boulevards. Each machine carried an extra driver equipped with a shovel and sand bags. Private automobiles in action were few and far between. Thousands of cars were stalled, however, and many were buried completely by the drifts which rose higher inch by inch from the wind which whistled off Lake Michigan.

CHAMBER WILL COOPERATE IN CENSUS

The Richmond chamber of commerce will cooperate to the fullest extent in the forthcoming census, according to a decision at yesterday's meeting of the board of directors when City Manager James A. McVittie outlined the need for such cooperation.

McVittie declared that all community forces should unite to give the greatest possible aid to the government in their enumeration of the city's population, and the chamber pledged its support with finances, publicity and personal work. Advance notices concerning the questions to be asked will be mailed to the residents of the city and placed in the hands of hotel and lodging house proprietors in order that as many blanks as possible may be filled out before the enumerator arrives, thus speeding up the work.

Paul Clagstone, western manager for the United States chamber of commerce, who spoke at yesterday's meeting, stressed the importance of the census and said that in this census American business will secure for the first time complete figures on manufacture, agriculture and distribution.

P. M. Sanford, president of the chamber, will name a special committee to attend the meeting of the committee of 49, to be held Thursday evening in the Merchants' exchange building, San Francisco, to outline census work throughout the bay region.

Another committee will attend the meeting at the Richmond city hall next Monday evening, called by Mayor A. L. Paulsen, to consider details of participation by all Richmond organizations in speeding up the census enumeration.

Sanford reported at yesterday's meeting that Richmond has been selected as the scene of the next convention of the State Builders' Exchange in September, the invitation having been extended and accepted at the Long Beach conference from which he has just returned.

"As to the situation in regard to the Ford plant, there is no announcement to be made," said Sanford, "but the information which I gained in Long Beach leads me to a feeling of great optimism."

Hit And Run Drivers Warned In New Auto Act

SACRAMENTO, Mar. 26— (Special)—Don't leave a gash in the fender of your fellow motorist's parked vehicle unless you leave your card as well, telling him how it happened and where to find you.

This was the gist of a warning issued today by the division of motor vehicles, calling attention to a section of the new motor vehicle act aimed at the particular species of "hit and run" driver who smashes fenders, running boards and bumpers on unattended vehicles and sneaks away in hope no one has seen him do it.

Section 141 1-2 of the new act it was stated, requires that when such drivers collide with an unattended vehicle they shall attempt immediately to get in touch with the owner and failing therein, shall leave a card in a conspicious place giving the name of the driver who struck the the vehicle and the circumstances.

The same section requires that the police be notified of the accident within twenty-four hours.

"Too often the owner of a car returns to it to find it mutilated by some careless motorist who, meanwhile, has left no trace of himself," the division's bulletin said. "If you are unfortunate enough to mar your neighbor's car in some way, play the part of a man and obey the law by getting in touch with him and explaining or by leaving a card. The chances are ten to one you will find him courteous and grateful for your thoughtfulness."

Doctor Talks At Richmond High School Assembly

Medicine and surgery were described as two of the most satisfying of vocations in a talk on "The Medical Profession" given by Dr. L. H. Fraser before a boys' assemblage at Richmond union high school yesterday.

Fraser pointed out the need in the medical vocation of integrity, charity, insight into human nature, skill, knowledge, good judgment and character.

According to yesterday's speaker, an exceptionally long and careful preparation is required for this vocation. Fraser stated that it was almost impossible for a medical student to earn his way through college because of the amount of time required for study.

High Pupils At Journalist Meeting At U. C.

Richmond Union high school was represented by Betty Jackson and Viola Coudyser recently at a three day high school journalistic convention held at the University of California, under the auspices of the Sigma Delta Chi fraternity.

Peter B. Kyne, well known Californian novelist, was the feature speaker at the convention. He spoke on his experiences in the field of literature.

Harry Smith of the San Francisco Chronicle spoke on sports, while women's opportunities in journalism were discussed by Marie Elwell Onions, society editor of an Oakland paper. A number of round tables were conducted on the various fields in newspaper writing.

Both local delegates to the convention are members of the staff of the Richmond Union high school Hi-Nus. Betty Jackson is editor, and Viola Coudyser is make-up editor of the high school paper.

Students of journalism from all over the northern section of California were present at the convention in Berkeley. The journalistic fraternities of Stanford and California alternate each semester in holding the high school meet.

TWO HELD FOR ATTEMPTED MURDER

SANTA ANA, Mar. 26—(UP)—Two men were held here tonight and charged with the attempted murder of Angelo Fremi, 28, who claimed that he was beaten and buried alive in a shallow grave near Huntingon beach.

The men under arrest were Harry Moran, 44, whom Fremi said was a "Chicago gangster in California for his health," and John L. "Tex" Wallace, alias C. M. Curry, 28, whom Fremi asserts was wanted in Texas.

Fremi said he has known the two men before he met them in Wilmington last night. They drove him to the beach on a pretense of getting some liquor cached there, he charged, but suddenly beat him, took his clothing and $50 and drove away, after leaving him unconscious in a shallow grave.

Later Fremi dug himself out and passing motorists brought him here. Moran and Wallace were arrested in Fremi's car. Police quoted them as saying Fremi knew too much."

RICHMOND TELLS THE WORLD

Following its policy of advertising the industrial advantages of Richmond, the Chamber of Commerce will devote its April number of the Richmond United to a summary of the many reasons why this city is a good place in which to do business.

The publication will be the regular number of the Richmond United, the official publication of the Chamber of Commerce, and will be largely given over to facts and figures dealing with the industrial, shipping and commercial advantages of Richmond. Read in conjunction with the previous booklet, "Richmond, a Good Place in Which to Live," it will give a complete picture of local conditions.

Why Richmond is the logical site of the location of western plants will be proved by figures dealing with industrial acreage, harbor developments, rail facilities, shipping terminals, highways, rates, water supply and other important features. Emphasis will be placed on the number of industries, many of them of international importance, which have long since selected Richmond.

Meanwhile, let us remember that Richmond's slogan has meaning:

Richmond is Industry's Western Goal!

SPORTS

4 ATHLETES OF HIGH NAMED ALL STARS

Four Richmond union high school athletes will be members of the Alameda County Athletic league All-Star track team that will clash with the University of California frosh squad Saturday on the U. C. track.

The local boys who have been selected to take part in the meet are: Charile Jackson, polevaulter; Roy Carson, discus thrower and shot put athlets; Schuyler Albert, miler; and Grover Johnson, hali miler.

These four Richmond union high school athletes are the "cream of the crop" at Richmond high. Jackson has consistently captured first and second places for the local squad for several seasons. He placed first in a recent three-cornered meet with Berkeley and University high school by climbing 11 feet 6 inches. Jackson is expected to be one of A. C. A. L.'s best bets in Berkeley Saturday.

Roy "Moose" Carson should be able to make a strong stand for Richmond in the throwing events. He specializes in the discus. Carson has not yet regained the throwing form that netted him a place in every meet in which he competed last year. He only succeeded in placing second in the three-cornered meet with Berkeley and University high schools. However, he has been undergoing heavy training since that time, and it is expected that he will be in his prime at Saturday's meet.

"Skip" Albert is an old reliable for the Richmond track aggregation. He has been grinding away at the mile ever since he entered high school almost three years ago, but it was only last year that he showed his true worth. Last season, he gathered places in the mile event in almost every track meet that he entered. He possesses a final sprint almost unequalled among high school milers of the eastbay. Albert has not yet run in any meets this season, but he has been showing a sensational stride in tryouts on the local high school track. The Alameda County Athletic league squad will have a strong ally in Schuyler Albert.

This season witnessed the sensational debut in local high school track circles of Grover Johnson, diminutive but plucky sophomore half and quarter miler. Johnson, like Albert, has not yet starred in any inter-school meets this season, but his speed in time trials has been particularly satisfying to Phil Hempler, Richmond union high school track coach. Johnson is expected to be able to hold his own in Saturday's tourney at Berkeley.

Inter-Class Meet At High School

The off postponed Richmond union high school inter-class track meet will probably be held tonight, according to Phil Hempler, local high school track coach. However, the date "is subject to change." Several meets are in the offing, and Hempler does not wish to enter a leg-weary team in competition with other school's.

The meet will be held on the Richmond union high school track.

Y Volleyball Team Defeated

The Richmond Y. M. C. A. volleyball team was defeated in three consecutive contests by the Vallejo squad last night in the local Y. M. C. A. gymnasium.

The scores of the three games were: 15-7, 15-4, and 15-9. The local athletes presented stubborn opposition in every contest, but were completely outclassed by the visitors from Vallejo.

Junior Nines Preparing For 3 Game Series

Baseball practice is in full swing at Roosevelt junior high school in preparation for the coming three game competition with Longfellow junior high school. George Warrenberg, coach at Roosevelt, is directing the Teddies.

The boys who are expected to see plenty of action on the Roosevelt varsity diamond squad are: Catchers, Crocker, Lehmkuhl, Riley; pitchers, Picton, Jester, Foster, Pearson; first base Banducci. Alexander, second base, Garcia; short stop P. Moitoza; third base, G. Moitoza, Shinnick; outfield, Honea, Cannon, Brady, Marian and Van Prooyen.

The Roosevelt 115 pound team will probably include: Catchers, Jorns, Vedo, McKune, Hosmer; pitchers, Toyota, Wheeler, Bono, Frager; first base Nicola Calle; second base Lewis, Rusich, Costa Mollica; short stop, Rosso, Birchrich; outfielders Rezello Astrale J. Corr, Wells, Williams, Rock, P. Corr and Geudici.

Girl's Basketball To Start Soon

The Roosevelt junior high school girls' inter-class baseball schedule will start next Tuesday or Wednesday.

The games will be held following school hours each Tuesday Wednesday, and Thursday. The contests will be directed by Ingeborg Adams, girls' physical education teacher at Roosevelt junior high school.

S. O. League Schedule To Be Arranged

The schedule for this year's Standard Oil Twilight league will be formed a a meeting of the Standard Oil Baseball association Friday at the refining plant.

The lineups of the four teams to take part in the league will also be presented at that time by the team committee of the organization. There are more than 100 candidates for positions on the league teams.

The league will start during the first week of may. The contests will be played on the First street diamond.

Don't allow anyone to run your car on the starter, warns the California State Automobile association. This practice not only injures the battery but will cause the brushes and commutator of the starting motor to become burned.

Scots Defeat Englishmen In Barnyard Golf

"Hoot Mon—A ringer."

"But I say, old top, it most decidedly is not a ringer. Do you not percieve that one extremity of the shoe is not completely surrounding the peg?"

These and similar remarks resounded into the ozone near the Richmond clubhouse last night when the champions of the Gladstone lodge, oSns of St.' George, came ,saw and were conquered by the horseshoe champions of the St. Andrews society.

The Scotch champions were trailing 18-20 and the Englishmen from the Memorial hall district were confident of winning the match. Jack Faulkner and Herbert Caswell the St. George champions had placed their shoes nearer to the peg than George Smith of the St. Andrews group when George Black of the Scotch society took careful aim, breathed a prayer to his patron saint and threw. The shoe dropped around the peg and rested easily upon the rubber pad.

Considerable discussion was prevalent as to whether or not the shoe was completely around the peg, but despite strenuous arguments by Hienie Brandeau, trainer of the St. George champs, Bob Fulton measured the shoe and pronounced it a ringer, making the score, St. Andrews 21, St. George 20.

When the tumult had quieted down, Brandeau demanded a return match, which will be played in the Memorial hall Tuesday night when the Sons of St. George hold their meeting.

During the business meeting which preceded the match, plans were made for the social night on April 9. At this time, members who are natives of Dumbartonshire will present the program under the chairmanship of Mrs. Robert Small. Peter MacCullum presided over the meeting.

Following the meeting refreshments were served by a committee headed by Bill Doull.

White Sea Bass Investigated By Fish Commission

TERMINAL ISLAND, March 26.—A report by S. S. Whitehead of the California State Fisheries laboratory, on an "Analysis of Boat Catches of White Sea Bass at San Pedro, California," has recently been published by the Division of Fish and Game of the Department of Natural Resources.

This investigation was carried on in order to determine the present condition of the white sea bass fishery. The procedure used was a calculation of the return per unit of effort for each year of the period 1918 to 1928. In order to fully understand the fishery, a study of the gear and fishing methods was also made. The yearly total catch and average yearly boat catch (total catch divided to total number of boats engaged in the industry) were discussed as a criterion of the fishery.

As the inaccuracies of total catch and average boat catch per year were too numerous, a finer method of computation was found necessary. Both average boat catch per month and average boat catch per trip were tried, and the former was chosen as the more accurate method so it was used as the index of the condition of the fishery. Various methods of computing the average monthly boat catch and average boat catch per trip were calculated and presented in graphic form.

Both the months and trip catches by their downward trends indicate marked depletion of the fishery, and show the need of protection to insure against commercial extinction.

Copies of this publication may be obtained by writing the California State Fisheries laboratory, Terminal Island.

HARRISBURG, Pa., March 26.—UP—The tangled republican political situation in Pennsylvania was cleared to a certain degree late today when Samuel S. Lewis, of York, deputy auditor general withdrew as a candidate for the republican nomination for governor.

Lewis' withdrawal leaves former Govesnor Clifford Pinchot, former Attorney General of Pennsylvania Francis Shunk Brown of Philadelphia and former Congressman Philips, in the race.

GIRL ATHLETES HOLD ANNUAL GYM JINX

The girl athletes of Richmond Union High School gathered last night at their annual gym jinx at the high school.

Awards were made last night for superiority in girls' athletics. The Winged R, highest girls' athletic award at the local high school, was presented to Muriel Pace, thereby increasing the membership of the Winged R society to seven.

Pins were presented to members of the low tenth grade volleyball team which won the title of this year's volleyball tournament. The low ten athletes were: Susan Carr, Hortense Hoener, Catherine Herron, Louise Olsen, Dorothy Oswill, Rose Rodeni, Lucienne Feugent and Winifred Stately.

Short stunts were presented by the girls from the various classes attending the gym jinx. A play entitled "The Thief," was presented by the Winged R society. The cast of the play included: Nellie Adams, Dorothy Boswell, Madeline Deboli, Edith Pucci and Julia Robbins. Doris Nystrom directed the production.

A supper in the high school cafeteria preceeded the program and presentation of awards. Games were also played in the afternoon.

The affair was conducted under the direction of Clara McLaurin and Mildred Cuthbertson. The awards were presented by Miss Cuthbertson.

SYNOPSIS

David Wade awakes after a prolonged spree, following his arrival at a New Guinea settlement, in a bed at the only hotel in the place to find that he has been robbed of his savings. Stella Blackney, daughter of Ma Blackney, owner of the hotel, is in the room when he opens his eyes and tells him she had native boys carry him into the hotel when she found him in a drunken stupor on the beach. She seems more distressed at his condition than by the loss of his savings.

"It's certainly very mysterious," he said to himself, and tried to put from him the memory of the girl's distressful eyes. They were beautiful eyes, he thought.

Then he rose and went to the bathroom; and presently, his splendid youth responding to the invigorating effect of the cold shower, he entered the breakfast-room. The captain and his mate, seated at the table, greeted him with friendly mockery, hailing him as one back from the dead, and making jests anent the virtues of temperance, and declaring lugubriously the extent of their alleged anxiety concerning him.

"And the young woman was anxious, too—though she tried hard to hide it," said the mate; whereat Wade glanced quickly to see if

Coming around a bend of the beach, they saw the storekeeper himself.

Stella, supervising the native servants, had heard.

"A good girl is Stella," said the captain. "She did her best to keep us on the straight and narrow path. Didn't you, Stella?"

As though she had not heard, the girl made no reply. The captain lowered his voice.

"If her old mother had been up and about it would have been different. She wouldn't have shut the bar on us. No fear! Not her! Ma Blackney takes all she can get, and then some. I reckon Stella's in for a bad time when the old girl gets better—if she ever does."

"Ill, is she?" asked Wade, remembering that since arriving at the settlement he had seen nothing of her

"Drink," said the mate laconically.

"A regular—what do you call it?—dipsomaniac; that's the word, isn't it?" he went on. "From what I hear she's had several bad turns lately, and this time the doctor made her take to bed. She's pretty bad. Rotten for the daughter, eh?"

A mop-haired and chocolate-skinned native set before them coffee and rolls.

"Rotten, as you say," he said. His mind returned to the matter of his missing money.

"That storekeeper fellow, O'Shane—what kind of man is he?" he asked the captain.

"The kind of man we shouldn't have bought grog from," came the answer promptly.

"I've heard things about him," put in the mate.

"They ain't nice things by a long chalk. We were goats to go near him. That was damn bad grog he gave us. I reckon I've had as much bad grog as any man in my time—and more, considering the queer places I've been in, knocking around. But I don't reckon I've ever had worse than O'Shane gave us the other night. I wouldn't be surprised if he made it himself, the swine!"

"I've heard things about him, too," said Wade, and considered telling of his loss.

But, before he could speak further, the captain, who had been in the islands more years than Wade was of age, gave it as his fixed and considered conviction that there was no doubt the things both Wade and the mate had heard were true enough provided they were bad enough.

O'Shane, he said, had an Irish name, but, like mostly everything he'd got, it wasn't rightly his. He wasn't an Irishman! No fear! He was a half-bred Portugee, that's what he was. His father used to be a pearl-diver round about Hawaii. The captain had known the father personally—a big, glash person, light-skinned for a Portugee, wearing earrings, finger-rings and loud clothes, and a great one for fancying himself with the women.

"But none of the women could stand him," continued the captain. "None of the decent ones, that is—and they were the kind he wanted most. But that didn't stop the swine!—Not a bit of it. He ended up by clearing out with a young woman who was governess to a planter's youngsters."

"You mean he eloped with her?" Wade put in.

"Elope nothing!" said the captain. "He took her by force—kidnaped her. There was a great bust-up about it, and the water-police and patrol-boats were out after him in no time. But that Portugee had a good working knowledge of the out-of-the-way islands, and he gave them the slip. It wasn't till a year later that one of the pearling crowd came upon his hiding-place. Saying nothing to the police, the pearler brought the rest of the boys."

The captain signalled one of the servants to bring him more coffee.

"And then," he went on, "the young woman was dead, and there was a tiny weaner of a kid the Portugee was trying to rear on condensed milk, without being too enthusiastic about it, either. There was a fight. The pearler boys were a tough crowd. The Portugee started it—potting at them as they came ashore. One of the boys dropped him on the sand.

"Afterwards his craft was sold and the money spent on paying a woman to rear the kid. Mick O'Shane, the man who doped us the other night, is that kid grown up."

"Having a father like that, he couldn't help being a crook," said the mate, and lit a cigarette. "Like father, like son."

"I understood he had reformed," said the captain. "Up till ten years ago he was one of the real bad-men of Hawaii, and there's a few rip-snorter bad-men round about there, I can tell you. Then suddenly he disappeared, and some time later turned up here. He had made a clean break away from his old associations. I am sure it was an honest attempt at reformation. There was the good influence of his mother, you know, to counteract the bad influence of his father. There's no reason why the saw shouldn't be 'Like mother, like son.' In order to make the change quite complete he had altered his name to O'Shane, choosing O'Shane probably haphazard. On the strength of the name he got into the habit of passing himself as an Irishman, even to his way of talking."

The meal over, the captain and the mate returned to their vessel. Wade went out on to the veranda, where the sea lay before him like a wide field strangely blue, and considered his position and what was best to do.

He made to turn and go back indoors in search of the girl, but stopped.

Coming round a bend of the beach, walking boldly, with a fine, free swinging of his arms, was the storekeeper himself.

"It's soberin' ye are, I'm thinkin'," said O'Shane easily as he ascended the veranda steps. "It was a gr-eat lot of drink ye swamped. A gr-eat lot. I'm somethin' of a drinker meself, but yourself ye're wonderful, me boy."

O'Shane was a personality, outstanding and impressive, and the note of his personality was Threat. An enormous man, much more than six feet tall and proportionately broad, with chest and shoulders which strained the seams of his white coat, and biceps that bulged the sleeves—his size alone was a threat.

Wade placed himself directly in his path.

CHEST PLAN TO BE STUDIED BY COMMITTEE

mon sense demands that the organizations unite in the drive."

Money Needed

VIOLA R. TREANOR, Girl Scouts—"We now have more than 100 girls in the organization and need money."

J. J. BARRY, Allied Veteran Council—"It will not do much good if the organizations benefited do not do their part. The Veterans of Richmond will be behind it 100 percent."

LOWELL R. SEARS, American Legion—"We must co-operate. It is essential that we reach the people who are willing and able to contribute. It is about time we put this over."

Effort Needed

REYNOLD CARLSON, Y. M. C. A—"United effort is needed. The drive could be put over if organizations back it to the limit. Members of organizations must do as much for the chest as they would for their organizations."

CLYDE PARKER, Y. M. C. A.—"The time is not opportune for the size of the city. We must know in advance what co-operation will be given, as another deficit would be liable to kill the organizations. We must center on the industries."

MAUDE WOOD, Camp Fire Girls—"In five years we have raised a total sum of about $25. I am in favor of the chest drive."

Confidence Expressed

MRS. W. H. SANFORD, Business and Professional Women—"Now is the opportune time to strike. If we co-operate, the drive will go over, and the public will be satisfied after the first time."

NORA ASHFIELD, assistant superintendant of schools—"To do it right, we must have a group of trained solicitors who will be paid for their work."

A. J. FURRER, Lions Club—"We may as well make it a success now as the community chest drive will come eventually. I suggest we interview heads of the Community Chest in cities that have made it a success."

Big Drive

S. S. RIPLEY, V. F. W.—"One big drive is worth a multitude of separate attempts. I am in favor of the drive."

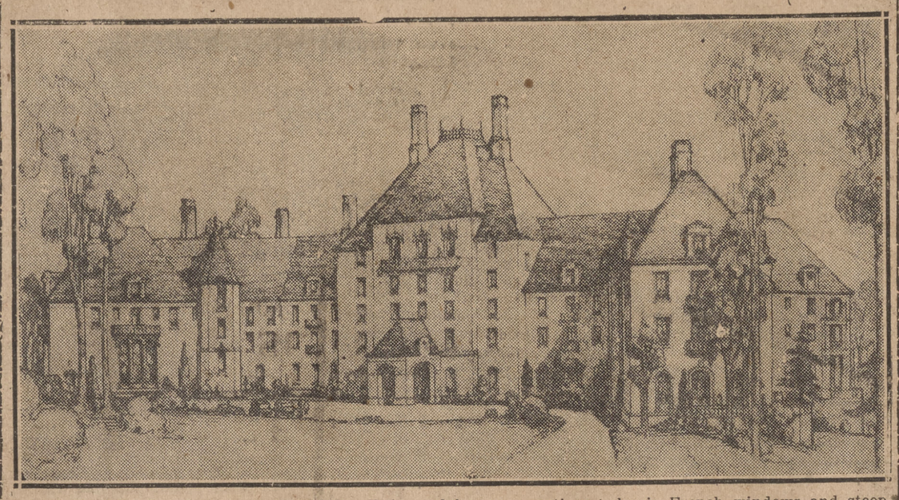
R. L. WHARTON, Kiwanis Club—"I am confident we can collect more with one big drive than with a number of smaller drives as we will have better support."

F. M. CHANDLER, Public Affairs committee of Kiwanis Club—"The multiplicity and duplications of drives during the year, makes it essential that we have a central agency to the minds of the public. We must concentrate on business support, and work in uniformity. Call it what you will or make it what you want, but to make a drive a success, we must have the unified support of the organizations."

Adjutant Malcom Keene represented the local Salvation Army at the meeting.

Chandler presided at the meeting and showed figures of what other towns have done in regards to the chest drive. He stressed the importance of unified organizations, and declared that the project could be put over if a properly directed effort was made to put into the field a number of volunteer workers in addition to the organization workers.

Christian Science Sanatorium in California



SAN FRANCISCO: Under articles of incorporation already filed with the Secretary of State of California, permanent trustees took over on March 23 the ownership of the property and buildings which are to accommodate the Christian Science Benevolent Association for Pacific Coast. The Association, which will open its doors to guests about the middle of May, was established in accordance with Section 8 of Article I of the Manual of The Mother Church, The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Massachusetts.

The Benevolent Association for Pacific Coast is the third large charitable institution established by The Mother Church, totaling an investment of over $4,000,000. The Christian Science Benevolent Association, located in Chestnut Hill, Mass., was chartered in 1916, and The Christian Science Pleasant View Home, located in Concord, N. H., in 1925. While all three of these corporations are independent from a legal point of view they are under the control and supervision of The Christian Science Board of Directors.

The California property, known as Arden Wood, is a thickly timbered, 16 acre, piece of rolling land situated on the edge of San Francisco, its general location being between Twin Peaks and the Ocean. The Sanatorium is sheltered from the prevailing winds by the hill which forms the principal topographical feature of the property. No public roads or ways cross it, but paths will be arranged extending from the Sanatorium through the woods, making a feature of a small ravine which runs along the east boundary.

The Sanatorium, designed by Henry H. Gutterson, Architect, is of steel and reinforced concrete done in a modernized Breton style, with high central pavilion, tall classic French windows and steep-sloping, red tiled roof. It will contain accommodations for 120 guests and associates.

Within the last few weeks a substantial piece of property jutting into the principal tract, formerly held by the City of San Francisco for school purposes, has been purchased to secure additional quiet and freedom from outside disturbances.

The Board of Trustees of the San Francisco institution will be in constant touch with The Christian Science Board of Directors as are the Boards of the two New England institutions.

The three Trustees of the new corporation are Mrs. Gertrude M. Glass, George D. Greenwood, and Marvin R. Higgins. Wilson D. Clark has been appointed Manager-Treasurer. All of these officers have been actively interested in Christian Science work for many years.

NEW SEWER PLAN DISCUSSED AT SPECIAL COUNCIL SESSION

the streets following rains. To correct this condition lime has been scattered by the city engineer's department to kill bacteria and prevent disease.

Cost Held High

Discussion was held on the proposition of the recommended sewer system as suggested by Miller's report. This system would cost approximately $1,229,000. It was felt by some that the cost would be too heavy for the city to bear at the present time. Suggestions were made that a portion of the system be installed at the present time with the remainder to be put in at a later date. It was pointed out however, that the portion of the sewer which would have to be installed first would be of no material benefit in relieving flood conditions in the major portion of the city which would be assessed for the outfall sewer.

Action Needed

Sewage conditions in the City of Richmond as they exist at present cannot be charged to anyone in particular. A number of systems were laid out, but the system as a whole cannot adequately take care of a population greater than 20,000 if worked to capacity.

Although the council did not take action on the report submitted by Miller and Hoffman last night it was generally conceded by all in attendance that some action would have to be taken in the immediate future to take care of emergency conditions in some sections of the city.

Small Drainage

There is small surface drainage in this city, and we have no storm sewers at the present time.

In considering the drainage of the city one must remember that at one time there were five big creeks running through the area which is now known as Richmond proper. These creeks now filled, took care of the surface water. All of this water must now be carried on the streets of the city.

In regard to the sanitary conditions as they exist at present, the report prepared in the engineer's office has this to say:

Sewage On Streets

"In addition to those sewers found to be of inefficient size to handle the ultimate population, some lines are unable to handle the present sanitary flow and others unable to handle certain peak loads due to direct inflow of storm water from undetermined sources.

THESE FAULTS LEAD TO THE DIRECT FLOW OF SEWAGE LIQUIDS AND SOLIDS DOWN THE GUTTERS OF CERTAIN SECTIONS OF THE CITY AND THE POLLUTING OF PONDS, WITH THE TENDENCY OF CHILDREN TO PLAY IN WATER AND WITH THE LEAKY WATER MAINS IN THE CITY THIS CONSTITUTES A REAL MENACE.

Retard Shipping

"The sanitary sewers of the district under consideration empty into the inner harbor and the future development of this harbor makes it necessary that preparations be made for the elimination of such outlets in order to prevent local nuisances.

"An insufficient or polluted water supply is fatal to the growth of any city; it is reflected in health reports, business apathy, and industrial stagnation and immediate rejection of city and community by executives seeking locations for new factories or branches.

"Such conditions as would be tolerated in a small city for collection and disposal of sewage are impossible even for consideration in larger cities, because of the amount of such sewage.

Many Systems

"The sanitary sewers of this city represent the cumulative results of between eighty and one hundred separate sewer plans and constructions. But few of the systems were planned for the ultimate development of the district served, and only a very small number in recent years have allowed for accommodations of sewage from topographically tributary areas."

In discussing the dumping of sewage into San Francisco bay, not only by this city but by dozens of others, the report has this to say.

"That there is ample water in San Francisco bay to properly dispose of the domestic and trade waste occasioned by the present surrounding population is easy to see, but unless proper attention is paid to the flow of the currents, it will be impossible to keep the water immediately adjacent to the shore from becoming unpleasant.

Sewage Treatment

"The proposed plan as presented should insure satisfactory disposal for many years, in fact, until that time when the complete development of the proposed inner harbor shall have caused such new tidal and wind effects that treatment of sewage has become necessary. The proposed outlet is so designed that it may be extended to give better opportunity for mixing should it be required. It is well to bear in mind that there is constant pressure being exerted to have all sewage at all places treated screened, or otherwise cleansed of solids, before emptying it into harbors, streams or lakes."

All of the flood conditions and those dangers set forth in the above paragraphs would be eliminatet by the installation of the new proposed sewer system.

Heavy Cost

To the uninitiated the figure of $1,229,000, the estimated cost of the proposed system, seems almost prohibitive. But the large area to be benefitted would cut the cost per lot down to a very small figure considering the benefits to be derived by the city as a whole.

The area included in the proposed district is bounded on the west by First street and the Santa Fe railway right of way; on the north by the northerly boundry of the city; on the east by Forty-second street north of Cutting boulevard and by Twenty-seventh street south of Cutting boulevard; on the south by the bay shore line.

There are 27,500 lots in this district which are privately owned, some belonging to the city of Richmond, others to the grammar school district and still others to the high school district. These lots would be assessed at the rate the work. This would provide $1,- of approximately $43.70 each for 210,300 of the required cost. The remainder is distributed over 262 acres of land in acreage. This acreage includes tideland lots, highlands, publicly owned and railroad property. The acreage would provide a revenue of $27,- 700.

The city's direct portion of the tax would amount to $11,000, while the grammar school district would be assessed $14,000 and the high school district $5000.

The proposed system would hook up with the present sanitary system, inadequate in many instances. It would also eliminate the two sumps, one at A street and Nevin avenue and the other at Eighth street and Cutting boulevard.

Material Required

Here is the major portion of the material which would be required in the construction which, it is estimated, would require about one year.

71,846 feet of vitrified clay sewer pipe ranging in size from four inch to 36 inch pipe. Some of this pipe would be supported by timber cradles and concrete jackets, due to the unstable ground conditions such as would be encountered in the inner harbor sections.

41,069 feet of certified cast concrete pipe ranging in size from 15 inches to 72 inches. Some of this pipe would have to be supported by a concrete cradle on green piles due to unstable ground conditions.

3540 feet of monolithic concrete sewer running up to a maximum in size of eight feet by eight feet. This is the major storm sewer which would carry off the heavy flood waters.

376 curb inlets of different designs to pick up water and throw it into sewers. These would be of concrete construction with grating covers, etc. They are all designed to take the maximum flow of water with the smallest opening and are patterned after the latest accepted and tested patterns.

221 manholes of seven different designs.

29 lampholes for inspecting the sewers.

3 diversion structures.
4 junction boxes.
3400 feet of underdrain.
980 cubic yards of concrete.
160 yards of rock fill.
6600 yards of ordinary fill.
3600 lineal feet of green piling.
5600 feet of creosote piling.

Report Praised

The report which was complied after months of study has won the praise of Harold F. Gray, internationally known consulting engineer who stated that the entire report and decommendations were compiled according to the latest approved methods.

A great deal of technical data is contained in the report showing the necessity of the sewer system.

The system has been worked out to provide for the latest accepted sanitary disposal of sewage. The outfall into the bay would be 25 feet under low water. Under this plan the dispersion of the sewage before it reaches the surface would be practically negligible. A surface outlet is also provided in the outfall system so that in case of flood conditions the main outlet would not become clogged.

The entire outlet system is of semi-automatic construction so that the amount of flow would control the outlet.

Major Kranz To Visit Army

The Richmond Salvation Army corps will be visited by Maj. Adolph Kranz of San Francisco, who will conduct a meeting at eight o'clock in the hall tonight. The meeting will be open to the public.

Major Kranz is divisional commander of the Golden Gate division which embraces the bay district, and has oversight of 15 corps. He will inspect the local Army's books while here today.
